

QEP Grammar Extravaganza: Appositives and Prepositional Phrases

Today, we'll learn what an appositive is, how it differs from a prepositional phrase, and how to use both.

Appositive: Defined

- Appositive = a noun or noun phrase that renames another noun right beside it
- The appositive can be a short or long combination of words.

Appositives

- The insect is crawling across the kitchen table.
 - The insect, a ladybug, is crawling across the kitchen table.
- During dinner, Clifford spewed mashed potatoes like an erupting volcano.
 - During dinner, Clifford, the world's messiest eater, spewed mashed potatoes like an erupting volcano.
- Wassily Kandinsky is known for his colorful abstract paintings.
 - A bold innovator, Wassily Kandinsky is known for his colorful abstract paintings.

Practice

Identify the appositive, if there is one, in the following sentences:

1. Carla, the leader of our group, is late again.
2. My neighbor, Melissa, waters her plants everyday.
3. I want a bright red Porsche, a sports car.
4. Kent and Michelle, Kent's wife, are business partners.

Punctuating Appositives

- When the appositive begins the sentence:
 - A hot-tempered tennis player, Robbie charged the umpire.
- When the appositive interrupts the sentence:
 - Robbie, a hot-tempered tennis player, charged the umpire.
- And when the appositive ends the sentence:
 - Upset by the bad call, the crowd cheered Robbie, a hot-tempered tennis player who charged the umpire.

Practice

Combine the sentences, using one as an appositive or an appositive phrase. Add commas where they're needed:

1. The first man on the moon was born in Wapakoneta, Ohio. He was Neil Armstrong.
2. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly have bought a new car. They're our neighbors.
3. Meteors are often called shooting stars. Meteors are chunks of metal or stone.
4. Graceland is in Memphis, Tennessee. Graceland is the home of Elvis Presley.
